QC UNITED

May 25, 2011

Dear Chef/Owner:

QC United, a non-profit organization supporting acceptance, tolerance, and multiculturalism in the QC, would like to invite your restaurant to be one of the select ethnic food vendors at Unity Festival International 2011, to be held September 24-25, at the Putnam Museum, 1717 W. 12th Street in Davenport. There is no cost to the vendors and you will have an opportunity to sell food throughout the day on Sunday (noon to 5pm).

Unity Festival International is a free-admission celebration featuring multicultural dance, music and storytelling, as well as demonstrations and children's activities. The festival is organized by QC United (501c3) in partnership with the Putnam Museum, and is supported by multicultural organizations including the Native American Coalition of the Quad Cities, the Vietnamese Community in the Quad Cities, the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce of the Quad Cities, and many others. Last year, over 1,200 students, families and community members came to the festival.

In addition to being a food vendor, your restaurant is also invited to provide a presentation or demonstration on your special cuisine. Time slots for the international cuisine demonstrations are 11 am, 1 pm and 3 pm on Saturday, Sept. 24. Our previous festival received excellent media exposure before and during the event and we expect no less this year. If you would like to participate in the festival with a cooking demonstration, the name of your restaurant and your logo will be listed in our promotional materials as the date of the event draws near.

Please contact us at (563) 343-0365 or (563) 349-1870 so that we can put you on our schedule and begin to promote you as a partner in this exciting event. See you at Unity Festival International 2011!

Sincerely,

Julie Pearson
